*Evidence that Counts:
Gathering Meaningful APPR Data To Support High Quality Teacher Evaluations*

Today’s high stakes environment, in which the burden of proof is on the evaluator, is serving as a catalyst to provide comprehensive and legally defensible assessment of teacher performance. It is also presenting us with a rare opportunity to enhance current practices. At this LIASCD networking session, Dr. Joan Daly-Lewis will lead participants in a guided exploration regarding the kinds of evidence evaluators generally consider, as well as the types of evidence (“multiple measures”) that now need to be gathered and factored into teacher evaluations. Joan will have us think through ways in which an increased focus on the artifacts of teaching and of learning can contribute to rich and productive shared inquiry with teachers, regarding the choices they make and the impact on their students.
